

Contributors

Alan R. Johnson, PhD, has served with Assemblies of God World Missions in Thailand since 1986. He has contributed four articles over the years on reaching Buddhists with the gospel for the SEANET Series on Buddhism published by William Carey Library.

Jason Morris, has preached the good news of Jesus for over 20 years in the US, Latin America and Asia. Jason previously served on the adjunct faculty of a denominational Bible School and seminary in the US and has now been involved in theological and ministerial training in Peninsular Asia for 10 years. Jason is committed to lifelong learning for the purpose of knowing God more intimately and training others to advance the kingdom of God in their context. Jason is an ordained minister and holds degrees in Church Ministry and Bible & Theology and is completing a PhD in Intercultural Studies.

Mark D. Rodli serves with AGWM in Thailand with his wife Sunny and two daughters. Their primary ministry consists of church planting in places where no church exists in collaboration with Thailand Assemblies of God churches. Mark is currently enrolled in the Ph.D. in Intercultural Studies program at AGTS (Evangel University).

Darin R. Clements, PhD (Education), served as an Assemblies of God missionary in Cambodia from 1997 to 2019. For most of that time, he taught and served in various leadership roles at Cambodia Bible Institute, and edited translation projects to provide the Cambodian church with discipleship resources. During his last term, he served as the director of CBI and had the joyful privilege of preparing the school for the first Cambodian director to succeed him in 2019. Darin and his wife Dianna have been a part of the APTS faculty and missionary family since 2020.
